

Fall 2014 Projects and Milestones

Fall 2014 has thus far been a busy season thus far for Loving Garland Green.

Down at the Garden: We have installed several new blackberry bushes. To day we have six blackberry bushes in the garden. The "I Love Seniors" garden plot is filled with vegetables, flowers and one blackberry bush. We've installed a winter garden plot that contains carrots, turnips, broccoli, and parsnips. Other new plants added to the garden include a birthday pot of pansies, a hoja santa plant, a turkey fig, and some mustard greens.

Yard Sale - September 13 we hosted a yard sale that earned Loving Garland Green $200.00

Health Expo - September 27 we participated in the annual Health Expo here in Garland. In addition to our booth, we offered three educational presentations: Seeds and Seed Saving; Organic Pest Control and How to Make a Lasagna Garden.

Installation of the Multicultural Garden Plot--October 8 we hosted this community event down at the garden. It was well attended was documented by the film crew from VietFace TV. More detail about this event is currently on our homepage.

Upcoming Events Still to come this fall include Loving Garland Green's participation in the 2014 Annual Neighborhood Summit as well as our participation in the Garland Mosaic Festival sponsored by the Garland Community Multicultural Commission.
